Manifesting Things

By Misha McGlown

"McGlown, a New York City-based jewelry designer/artist/writer, offers up a hodgepodge of Christian, Muslim, West African, and Eastern spiritual traditions in her writings.....The prose is nearly lyrical. I also like the fact that she does not present herself as a "guru"; she freely admits to having ongoing financial problems, crappy relationships with men, and struggles with single motherhood. Her candor is refreshing in an age when self-proclaimed "spiritual leaders" all too often present themselves as the end all and be all of enlightened living. And the cover art itself is worth the price of the book."
